Hogs and Cotton

The transition from "hominy" to "hog" is easy, but the same arguments are not applicable. We mean to say that cheap transportation is not a sufficient excuse few farmers who ought to grow wheat, there are but few farmers, who can be easily managed, so cheaply fed, so generally exempt from fatal diseases, and withal so profitable, that we would rather -as an individual-give up producing corn than raising hogs. What is true of hogs is still more strictly and generally true of milk, butter, beef and mutton, chickens, eggs. The trouble is our inclinations are too strongly in favor of cotton. "Cotton is King" should read "Cotton is Master," and the cotton planters are his slaves. It is the slavish devotion to cotton as the sole resort for a money income that has impoverished so many Southern farmers, and bound them in debtors' chains. Think for a moment of the cheap and fertile soil, the mild and equable climate, the great variety of forage and fattening crops of the South-cowpeas, sweet potatoes, chufas, peanuts-not one of which can be produced in the North and North west-to say nothing of Bermuda grass, crab grass, corn, oats, rye, clover, collards, etc., which we can produce just as well as they can be produced anywhere. Why talk about limiting the area devoted to mal resolution unanimously adopted, cotton by co operative effort, or resolu- recommended and urged upon every tions, or what not? What do the farm | farmer of that State the setting aside ers do with most of the money they get from five to ten acres of land around the for their cotton, after paying for the labor homestead, said acreage to be know as that produces it? Why, they buy bacon, "The Wife's Farm," to be devoted exwithout butter,) a good deal of corn or plan, of grain, grasses, vegetables, poulcorn meal, tons of hay, seed oats and try, pigs, etc, and that an hour or two market price. rye, syrup, flour, mules and horses, etc., each morning shall be devoted by the nearly all of which they may and ought farmer and his force to cultivate this to produce at home. What if every "farm." The idea of the society was to farmer would produce all of these things make each farm self sustaining and in at home, and then add fruits and vegetables, all in quantities sufficient to sup ply the country, including the towns? He would find that he could make cotton

Having Something to Sell.

One sure and certain remedy for hard times is in always having something to be, of such quality as to readily command It's sheer waste of good talent. a fair price. It is a fact worthy of serious consideration that the most persistent croakers about hard times are those who lack in industry, good management, good breeding, and, in many cases, sound integrity. They make no special effort to obtain the best results, make few intelligent experiments, take no "stock" in the experiments of others, no difference how favorable the results, but continue in the old ruts to satisfy their vanity. It is well to be on the watch when purchasing of such a person, for the, largest apples are sure to be on top and the best grain used as a sample. Because merchants deal in inferior goods is no excuse for farmers doing the same.

While using care in marketing, it is IT IS A FACT! also well to provide a variety. It is true, special farming has many advocates, and many good advantages can be presented in its behalf, but the most successful advocates of special farming are those who enjoy special markets for the articles they produce. As a rule, those who are not so situated as to avail themselves of special marketing advantages will find it to their advantage to engage in general farming, thus being enabled to meet a largest stock in the State. demand in any line of their production.

By general farming is meant not only the production of the various grains and vegetables, but the raising of several kinds of stock, and the culture of various kinds of fruits and berries. The general farmer will thus have at any season of for 95 cents each. the year some article of his production that may be placed upon the market. Having an income during each month in the year, he is ever ready to meet his obligations and can govern himself accord ingly. The old-time cotton planter was a specialist. All his lands were devoted to the culture of this useful plant, the fibrous production of which found a ready purchase at a fair price. The income was large, but coming in a bulk money appeared plentiful to the planter and was freely spent, and quite frequently the supply was exhausted and a credit sys tem adopted long before another harvest would bring a fresh supply of money.

In personal experience it has been found very satisfactory to begin the year by having occasionally a horse to place on the spring market. Later on, a va riety of plants, for the accommodation of neighbors, is placed on the market. Next in order is the crop of wool, just in season to pay the June taxes. Then follows a variety of fruits, vegetables and berries, some of which find ready sale at fair prices. The wheat crop, which on a small farm does not look large, cuts no small figure in making the accounts show $8 50 that have no rival. up on the right side of the ledger. Next follows a market for a few stock sheep, at a good time to meet the December taxes. And, finally, a few fattened hogs are ready for market in time to make a few purchases for 'Christmas.

But this is not all, for the good housewife has been busy all the while in the production of gilt-edged butter, and the industrious hens have prepared many eggs for the grocery counters, and numerous flocks of yellow and white legged chickens, which will escape the visits of yard can be bought at Baruch's at 24 cents s the preacher, will grace the table of some of the city cousins. By this means many | yard. of the household expenses are made and the home improve. - Farm and Fireside.

A Vermont farmer picks the apple seed from his cider presses and sells them for use in the manufacture of prussic acid. He gets about one bushel of seeds from 140 bushels of apples.

A Herse Shoe to be Clamped on the Hoof.

A simple form of shoe, which can be quickly clamped upon the hoof of a horse and as quickly removed, without the use of nails has been patented by Mr. Joseph Broonett, No. 369 Nineteenth Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. The shoe is composed for abandoning all efforts to "raise our of two similar parts each shaped substanown bacon." While there may be but tially like one half of a common shoe, the parts being hinged together at the front. Secured to the upper edges of the parts excused for not raising hogs. They are so are thin metallic shields, their shape approximating that of a horse's hoof, and formed at their front edges into inter-locking knuckles through which a pintle is thrust to form the hinge, the shoe being thus made in two hinged parts which may be easily opened when it is to be placed on the horse's hoof. Extending around the upper edges of the shields are ject behind the heel of a horse, and terminating in flanges adapted to receive a clamping bolt. One of the flanges is screw-threaded, and in attaching the shoe the bolt is passed through one flange | Than at any ginnery in the State, for we and screwed into the opposite flange, the shoe being firmly clamped upon the hoof by tightening the bolt. The hoof should be pared in the ordinary way to bring it so far this season has turned out an average of the shoe, which cannot become accident ally detached .- Scientific American.

"Some years ago, after a severe attack of brain fever, my hair all came out. I used such preparations for restoring it as my physicians ordered, but failed to produce a growth of hair. I then tried, successively, several articles recommended by druggists. and all alike fell short of accomplishing the desired result. The last remedy I applied was Ayer's Hair Vigor, which brought a growth of hair in a few weeks. I think I used eight bottles in two years; more than was necessary as a restorative, but I liked it as a dressing, and have continued to use it for that purpose. I believe Ayer's Hair Vigor possesses virtues far above those of any similar preparation now on the market."
